

HUMAN RESOURCES IN EUROPEAN MARKET IN THE PAST DECADE A SOCIOLOGICAL OVERVIEW

AHMET ECIRLI

Hena e Plote Beder University, Tirana

EDITH-MIHAELA DOBRE

Nicolae Titulescu University, Bucharest

EMILIAN M. DOBRESCU

Spiru Haret University and Romanian Academy, Bucharest

European market is known to pay particular importance to characteristics of human resources in the past decade. It is well known that these features such as unemployment rate caused deep economic and social crisis encountered in the EU member countries by the end of the last decade and continue today in most of them. The forecasts of the experts which state that crisis will last 5 to 7 years have been considered promising but still with suspicion. That is why it is extremely important that policy-makers should not lose sight in making economic, social and political decisions where the balance is always fragile in terms of interdependence of the labor market.

Keywords: European market, human resources, monthly salary, number of employees, purchasing power parity (PPP), relocation-outsourcing, unemployment rat