

THE AUTHORS

VIRGINE BORGES DE CASTILHO is a new graduate in full degree in History from the State University of Goiás (UEG), Brazil. The theme of her research of completion – Japanese pop culture: The concept of otaku in the region of Itumbiara/GO/ Brazil – bringing the historiography and oral history as focus and methodology. She has published articles and participated in several conferences in college (UEG), among the featured events, X Week Academic History – For what serves the History? Craft of the historian to the challenges of teacher, presenting the work: Japanese Pop Culture: a Look at the Concepts of the Otaku Phenomenon. The author is a specialist in Japanese pop culture and its manifestations in Brazil. Currently, a graduate student in Media in Education from the Federal University of Pelotas (UFPel), Brazil. The current focus of her research is related to hallyu and Korean culture. She has published the article: Culture without frontiers: The arrival and the manifestation of the Korean wave in Brazil – by non profit organization World Association for Hallyu Studies – presented at the Second International Congress for Hallyu on October 31, 2014 in the National Library of Argentina. The author has interest in Japanese and Korean culture as well as in other Asian cultures.

ADRIANA-ANCA CUȘMIR graduated from the Faculty of Sociology and Social Work, University of Bucharest in 2002. She was granted the title of PhD in Sociology in 2011, with the thesis “The Assessment of the Romanian Juvenile Justice System”. Since 2006 she has worked within the Institute for Crime Research and Prevention and since 2011 she is an associated researcher within the Institute of Sociology of the Romanian Academy. She was involved in criminological researches on topics like restorative justice and mediation, public perception on police, social attitudes towards risk in traffic, perception on violence among children and adolescents, violent attitudes and behaviors among inhabitants from rural areas, sexual abuse on children, consumption of alcohol among the teenagers, crime analysis and assessment of prevention programs. Her main areas of interest are juvenile justice and juvenile delinquency, violence and gender based violence, prevention of crime and police assessment.

ANTONIO PANICO is a Coordinator of the Organizing Committee of the branch Lumsa-Taranto responsible for the academic activities and research

(academic year 2004/2005 till present). He received his PhD in Social Sciences at the Pontifical Gregorian University and started in the academic year 1995–1996 his teaching experience with Sociology of Deviance in the School of Direct to Special Aim for Social Workers of Taranto-EDAS in agreement with the University of Lecce. From 2001–2002 to 2003–2004 he was a Professor of Sociology of Work at the Faculty of Economics, University of Molise. From the academic year 1995–1996 he has been a Professor of Social Moral Theology and Social Doctrine of the Church at the Higher Institute of Religious Sciences “Romano Guardini” of Taranto and now he is a “Stable Professor” appointed by the Commission of the Pontifical Theological Faculty of Southern Italy. He currently teaches, at the branch of Taranto, General Sociology and Theology II (Social Doctrine of the Church) and the Bachelor’s Degree in Social Services and non-profit (L-39) and Urban Sociology in the Master’s Degree of Science in Planning and Management of policies and social services (LM-87). He has coordinated several researches commissioned by local authorities and Ministries of the Italian Republic. He is a member of the editorial board of “Fides et Ratio” review and Editorial Advisor for Journal of Indigenous Social Development (JISD) edited by Social Work Department-University of Hawai’i – Manoa. He is a board member of UCISS (International Catholic Union of Social Work) General Committee.

RICCARDO ROSSANO is a law Professor at the LUMSA University (Libera Università Maria Santissima Assunta) – Taranto campus. After receiving his Human Rights PhD at the University of Palermo in 1999 he started his teaching experience in the academic year 1999–2000. Courses have included: human rights, immigration and refugee, juvenile law. He currently teaches family law. He has participated in research projects commissioned by local authorities and Ministries of the Italian Republic. He has coordinated several conferences together with Fulbright Commission that had visiting Professors from Boston College, University of Hawaii, St. Mary University-Texas and University of Vermont. He is currently the local president of the UGCI (Union of Italian Catholic Jurists).

DIEGO OSWALDO CAMACHO VEGA is a postdoctoral fellow at L’Université Pierre et Marie Curie LIP6 (Sorbonne Universités). He earned his PhD in Global Development Studies from the Faculty of Economy and International Relations at Universidad Autonomous University of Baja California in México in 2014 with the thesis “Acquisition of social capital through social networking sites in Mexico, Austria and Romania”. In 2013 Diego Camacho realized a doctoral stay at the University of Vienna and at University of Bucharest. He has been a teacher for ten years; his last position was as associate professor at the Autonomous University of Baja California until he obtained his postdoctoral fellowship in Sorbonne. He obtained an MBA with honors from the Autonomous University of Baja California in 2011. He obtained his undergraduate’s degree in Psychology with honors too in the same university. Diego Camacho's general research area is about Psychology and education: development of cognitive, metacognitive, motivational and social skills; Psychology in social events; Uses of digital technologies in clinical studies; and the impact of new technologies in social movements. Dr. Diego Camacho has a whole experience in organizational psychology including the incorporation of new technologies in human development, the creation of a regional TV channel and a Web for news content. He has authored and co-authored some papers and book chapters, including: Dictionary of Communication (2014); Consumer's Participation on Brand Pages on Facebook (2013); Gratificaciones a través de los sitios de redes sociales: de las gratificaciones individuales a las sociales en estudiantes de Mexico, Austria y Rumania (2015); Competencias cardinales y su impacto en la empresa multimedia (2012), etc.

